THE COBBLER IN WASHINGTON.

There is much philosophy and good segue in the following article from the Buston Morning Post, which we commend to the particular attention of all grumblers and borrowers.

alt is very ensy to find fault with a newspa per, but not quite so easy to make an unesceptionable one. We have often been amused to hear a person describe such a paper as he would like a very excellent model, to be sure, but one, which Theither tie now have heard a politician who never did anything for his party except to vote for its candidates, and that only when he was one of them de nounce every press devoted to the same cause. Some were too rank some loo violent some too duits some too gay some too tame will ton bigated some tou liberal some devoted too much space to light reading some were always sermonising some published too much about theatres some never-attended to the passing events around them. Ac. &c; and for these rebauns the never subscribed for a daily journal to his life, but was forever founging about insurance. Offices and public rowns to read and. aliuse till he could put his hands on, while his family at home, were continually borrowing their neighbors before the owners had an opportunity to look at them. Your straightforward politician, who acts from honest and disinterested motives, dece not groundle at his paper hereads it with a relish, as a man in good health caus his food , but your meagre, dyspeptic, ast. fish demagogue, who is living on the hope of one day gertring his noce into the public crib, or has already got it there, and is trambling with fear lest it be thrust aside, grunts and growns at every paragraph whigh does not appear to have a tendency to advance his personal views, yet ahe and his desires are alike contemptible; they ore resulty it ever, throught of by an editor, and hence, no paper suits him. We have heard mutton headed fellows, men who could nt write an account of a marriage correctly-complain of a tack of able articles in the public prema-"O yes, take Superior was in large enough for these minnows they could only find toom in the Atlantic, while sensible sild well informed men
